

DEPARTMENT OF COMMUNITY AND HUMAN SERVICES
Mental Health, Chemical Abuse and Dependency Services Division

KING COUNTY, WASHINGTON
A GREAT PLACE TO WORK
OUR PROVIDERS ARE NOW HIRING
Mental Health and Substance Abuse Professionals

POSITIONS AVAILABLE

Now available at a number of King County's contracted Mental Health and Substance Abuse Providers located throughout the County.

For more information, click below:

Mental Health Contract Providers

Substance Abuse Contract Providers

For information regarding positions available for King County Department of Community and Human Services in Seattle, click below:

<http://your.kingcounty.gov/ohrm/jobs/healthcaresvc.htm>

What's Happening in King County?

King County passed a sales tax levy that will be the largest influx of dedicated funding for Mental Health & Substance Abuse Programs that King County has seen!

Mental Illness and Drug Dependency Action Plan (MIDD)

Millions of dollars will be spent to benefit persons with Mental Illness or Substance Abuse.

WE ARE SEEKING DEDICATED PROFESSIONALS TO SUPPORT THESE PROGRAMS!

WE ARE OFFERING:

Funding is available to pay tuition, books, and testing fees to become a chemical dependency professional. Employees of any King County contracted Substance Abuse or Mental Health Provider are eligible to participate.

Seattle's Lake Union is one of four natural bodies of water between Lake Washington and the Puget Sound.

Seattle is the largest city in King County, part of the Puget Sound Region, and together with King County's other 38 cities, contains beautiful mountain peaks, abundant fresh and salt water lakes, rivers, and streams. King County offers a wonderful mix of urban, suburban and small rural living opportunities.

Temperate climate affords residents and visitors opportunities to enjoy the outdoors year round.

Arts, sports, recreation, and culture abound in the area.